IMPROVING STUDENTS’ SPEAKING SKILL USING PODCAST
DURING THE PANDEMIC AT SMP MUHAMMADYAH 2 MALANG

ABSTRACT

This article aims to describe the use of podcast media in learning in the digital age. The emergence of various learning resources and the spread of media, particularly the internet and electronic media as sources of knowledge and educational centers, will result in very significant progress as a result of digitalization. In the digital age, one of the innovations that can be implemented is the use of podcast learning tools. The research design used in this research was The quasi-experimental type is divided into two types: group design unequal group designs, in which the behavior of the experimental group and the control group was measured before and after implementation, and interrupted time-series design, in which implementation effects are usually inferred from benchmarking behavior measures taken several times before treatment and behavioral measurements taken several times after treatment. The experimental group is the group that is taught to speak using the podcast media. Before administering the treatment, the researcher administered a pretest to assess the students” ability to communicate. The control group was then given a pre-test to determine their prior knowledge.

The results of hypothesis testing show that the significance value obtained is 0.805, which is greater than 0.05, and the results of the posttest homogeneity test of the control and experimental groups are 0.574, which is also greater than 0.05.
Then the conclusion is that there is an increase in student learning outcomes using the experimental method in learning English speaking by using podcast media as the subject matter in the experimental class.
