Perubahan iklim di Eropa baru-baru ini merupakan isu yang sangat penting untuk diselesaikan oleh negara-negara di Eropa. Sejak tahun 2012, di seluruh Eropa suhu udara tercatat meningkat bersamaan dengan penurunan curah hujan di bagian selatan dan peningkatan curah hujan di wilayah utara. Lapisan salju berkurang sebagian besar tanah permafrost telah menghangat lapisan es di Greenland, es di laut Arktik, dan beberapa gletser di seluruh Eropa mulai mencair. Dalam beberapa tahun terakhir bencana cuaca ekstrem termasuk gelombang panas, banjir, dan kekeringan telah meningkatkan biaya kerusakan di seluruh Eropa. Penelitian ini menggunakan penelitian studi kasus interpretatif dimana jenis penelitian ini masih bagian dari penelitian kualitatif. jenis penelitian interpretatif ini berfokus pada suatu kasus tertentu yang akan diamati secara cermat untuk kemudian dianalisis dan ditarik kesimpulan yang akurat dengan menggunakan teori dan konsep. dengan menggunakan konsep Rezim Internasional dan Normative Power, Uni Eropa bergabung dengan Paris Agreement karena Uni Eropa berupaya menunjukkan komitmen yang besar dalam menyikapi perubahan iklim berhubungan dengan pengurangan emisi, kepemimpinan global yang secara aktif, memberikan dukungan finansial yang serius terhadap penanganan iklim, dan pengimplementasian yang nyata dan serius. sebagai anggota rezim yang taat, Uni Eropa menginternalisasi atau menyerap nilai norma dan sebagainya dari Paris Agreement menjadi kebijakan untuk diri mereka sendiri dan kerjasama kenegara lain. Dalam kerjasama dengan negara lain Uni Eropa memastikan bahwasanya mitra kerjasama mereka patuh terhadap Paris Agreement dan standar aksi perubahan iklim Uni Eropa. Normative Power Uni Eropa mengikat negara-negara lain dalam kerjasamanya untuk dapat merubah perilaku dari suatu negara agar dapat sejalan dengan Uni Eropa.

Kata Kunci: Uni Eropa, Perubahan Iklim, Rezim Internasional, Kekuatan Normative, Perjanjian Paris.

ABSTRACT

Muhammad Adi Reksa, 2024, 202010360311054, University of Muhammadiyah Malang, Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, International Relations study program, European Union Efforts in Realizing Zero Emission in 2050, Advisor : Azza Bimantara, M.A.

Climate change in Europe has recently become a very important issue for countries to address. Since 2012, across Europe, record air temperatures have risen along with decreasing precipitation in the south and increasing precipitation in northern regions. Snow cover is diminishing in most of the permafrost lands have warmed ice sheets in Greenland, ice in the Arctic seas, and some glaciers across Europe are starting to melt. In recent years extreme weather disasters including heatwaves, floods and droughts have increased damage costs across Europe. This research uses interpretative case study research where this type of research is still part of qualitative research. This type of interpretative research focuses on a particular case that will be carefully observed and then analyzed and drawn accurate conclusions using theories and concepts By using the concepts of International Regime and Normative Power, the European Union joined the Paris Agreement because the European Union seeks to show great commitment in addressing climate change related to reducing emissions, active global leadership, providing serious financial support for climate management, and real and serious implementation. As a member of the obedient regime, the European Union internalizes or absorbs the normative values and so on from the Paris Agreement into policies for themselves and cooperation with other countries. In cooperation with other countries, the EU ensures that their cooperation partners comply with the Paris Agreement and EU climate change action standards. Normative Power The European Union binds other countries in its cooperation to be able to change the behavior of a country in order to be in line with the European Union.
